A CENTENNIAL ROMANCE.

The Louisville Journal tells the story of ninety-nine years ago. Sunday, July 14, 1776, just when the rudely constructed fort at Boonsborough lay in drowsy stillness on the banks of the Kentucky river, Daniel Boone and his associate, Richard Callaway, had been absent since early in the morning, and the good wives, sharers in the toil of the early pioneer days, were enjoying the rest that the Sabbath brought even to the unbroken wilderness. In the grateful shade of the tree in one corner of the enclosure sat three young girls, just blooming into womanhood, and giving an unwonted charm to the rough evidences of civilization which had but recently forced themselves upon the primitive harmony of the surrounding scenery. The eldest of these maidens was Elizabeth Callaway.

The other girls were younger by two years, and differed from her in appearance. Fanny Callaway was fairer than her sister Betsy, but not more pleasing in appearance. The third girl, Jimena Boone, was also naturally fair, and like Fanny, owed whatever fairness she may have lost to constant exposure to the weather. Nor were these younger maidens without their fancies, too, for the wilderness matures its occupants rapidly, and though but fourteen years counted the lives of the two girls, each had a lover who was a hardy and bold pioneer, and ready to encounter any danger for his lady love.

As evening drew near, the last lingering breath of air seemed to lull itself to rest, and the July heat seemed to become still more oppressive—the quick ear of one of the girls caught the sound of the river as its subdued murmur floated up over the bank, and she proposed that they should go a short distance beyond the fort to where a canoe was lying, and drift out upon the bosom of the river, to catch the rising coolness of the evening waters.

Hardly were they seated and prepared to push from the shore, when they detected a slight rustle in the brush, and in a moment more five stalwart and hideously-painted Indians leaped to the side of the canoe and pulled it close to the shore. What girl of sixteen could be equal to such an emergency? It was here that the true heroine displayed herself. It was here that the sentimental girl, who had been just dreaming of her absent lover, and wandering through the realms of maiden fancy with love-sick girls like herself, in an instant converted herself into the daring and hardy woman of the frontier; it was here that Betsy Callaway, without a moment's hesitation, determined to defend the honor and the lives of herself and her young companions, and wrote her name in the annals of Kentucky. Standing erect in the canoe, she seized the paddle and at a single blow laid open to the bone the head of the foremost savage. The other Indians pressed on, but still undaunted, the brave young girl fought them with the ferocity of a mother protecting her young. Finally exhausted, she sank to the bottom of the canoe, and with her trembling sister and friend was dragged ashore and hurried off to meet whatever fate might be in store for them.

The consternation of the fort can well be imagined. The fathers of the girls soon returned, and, before he night closed in, Daniel Boone, at the head of a party on foot, and Richard Callaway, at the head of a party on horseback, were off in pursuit. In Boone's party were Samuel Henderson, John Holder and Flanders Callaway. What gave these youths such determined looks and made them press on so eagerly? Was it only a knightly spirit that prompted them to the rescue of forlorn and captured damsels? Ah! as Samuel Henderson strode along he was thinking of the olive-checked heroine, Betsy Callaway; and John Holder, clenched his hands and ground his teeth when he thought of poor, little, frightened Fanny; and Flanders Callaway almost forgot his kith and kin for thinking of his captured Jimena Boone.

When the Indians started with the girls they made the younger ones take off their shoes and put on moccasins, but Betsy refused to take off her shoes, and as she walked along she ground her heel into the soil to leave a trail. Noticing this, the Indians made the whole party walk apart and deviate from the course, so as to wade through the water and destroy the trail. Then the undaunted Betsy broke off the trail and dropped them along the road, never doubting for a moment that her father and her lover would save her in her hour of need; and when the savages threatened her with uplifted tomahawk if she persisted in this, she secretly tore off portions of her dress and dropped them on the road.

Boone's party soon found the trail and followed it rapidly, fearing that the girls might grow weary and be put to death. All Sunday night and all Monday the pursuit was kept up. On Tuesday morning a slender column of smoke was seen in the distance, and the experienced eye of the hunter at once detected the camp of the Indians. A serious difficulty now presented itself. How were the captives to be rescued without giving the captors time to kill them?

There was but little time for reflection, as the Indians must soon discover their presence. The white men were sure shots, and so they picked their men, fired upon them, and rushed into the camp to the rescue. At that moment of attack the girls were sitting at the foot of a tree; Betsy with a red bandanna handkerchief thrown over her head, while the heads of Fanny and Jimena were reclining in her lap. Betsy's olive complexion came near serving her a bad turn at this juncture, for one of the rescuing party coming suddenly upon her mistaking her for an Indian, and was about to knock her brains out with the butt of his rifle, when a friendly hand intervened and saved the girl from meeting her death at the moment when she saw liberty within her reach.

The fathers and gallants carried their loved ones home in triumph, and this romance of real life in Kentucky a century ago would not be complete without the information that the drama of love and happiness that were so cruelly disturbed ninety-nine years ago this summer day were subsequently all realized. Brave Betsy Callaway became Mrs. Samuel Henderson, and lived to tell the story of her capture to her children and her children's children. Little Fanny became Mrs. John Holder, and Flanders Callaway took to his home Miss Jimena Boone, and thus cemented the friendly ties of the Boones and Callaways. It is a long time ago, nigh on to a hundred years, and also the actors in the romance have long since departed; but their memory is green with many of us yet, and we can all well afford to give a few thoughts to the event that marked their characters and the times in which they lived and loved.

LEGAL NOTICES.

COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE,
No. 56 King st., Alexandria, Va.
July 22nd, 1875.

In the Circuit Court of Alexandria city, President, Directors and Company of the Farmers' Bank of Virginia, (use of Isaacs, Taylor & Williams) vs. The Alexandria Canal Company and others. A Chancery.

[Extract from the decree May term, 1875.]
* * * * * "The said report of Chancery Commissioner Kemper having been made and returned before the filing of the amended bill, and before the said Philip Quigley, Henry H. Wells and William W. Dunham were made parties hereto, it is decreed that the said report be re-committed to said Chancery Commissioner, with instructions to ascertain and report to the next term of this Court any further matters pertinent to the said inquiry which any party hereto may desire."

The said Commissioner shall publish for four weeks notice of the time and place of executing this decree, and the same shall be equivalent to personal service.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all parties interested in the above suit, and proceeding at the Court of Alexandria city, on the 24th day of August, 1875, at my office, No. 56 King street, Alexandria, Virginia, as the time and place when and where I shall proceed to execute the above decree, at which time and place they are required to attend.

Given under my hand this 23rd day of July, 1875. F. L. SMITH, P. K. KEMPER, Comm'r. in Ch'y. jy 23-17

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF ALEXANDRIA CITY, May term, 1875.

William H. Gaines, adm'r. of John P. Phillips, dec'd., plaintiff, against Isaac Newton and G. Bolton Newton, defendants;

J. Orne, plaintiff, against Isaac Newton, Jr., and G. Bolton Newton, in their own right, and as executors of Isaac Newton, dec'd., Dorothy Newton, George B. Earp and Anna N. Earp, his wife, Morris Adams and Caroline H. Adams, his wife, Anna N. Hupfeld, Edward Thornton Taylor and George B. Warren, Jr., executors, and Phoebe W. Taylor, executrix, of Benjamin Orne, dec'd., Henry H. Wells, Taylor, and Thomas G. Mumford, and Edward Thornton Taylor, executors of William H. Taylor, dec'd.; G. Bolton Newton and Isaac Newton, ex'rs. of Isaac Newton, dec'd., plaintiffs, against Dorothy Newton, George B. Earp, Anna N. Earp, S. M. Adams, Caroline H. Adams, Anna N. Hupfeld, Samuel N. Hupfeld, Phoebe W. Taylor, Edward Thornton Taylor, George B. Warren, Jr., Henry A. Taylor and Thomas G. Mumford, defendants. (Three suits consolidated.) In chancery.

And the Court doth further adjudge, order and decree that this case be referred to Master in Chancery A. W. Chilton, who shall ascertain and report to the next term of this Court whether or not the debt decreed in these causes be due to William H. Taylor has been assigned to Mrs. Sophia C. Snyder; and if so, he shall state and report the character of the instrument by which the assignment was made, the consideration therefor, and the parties making the same. He shall also ascertain and report the amount of cash due, and which will be sufficient to obtain a final decree in the suits of Phillips vs. Newton, Newton vs. Newton, and Orne vs. Newton.

Said Commissioner may give notice of his proposed action under this decree by publication once a week for four successive weeks in the Alexandria Gazette, and such publication shall be equivalent to personal service of such notice on all parties.—[Extract from decree of May 29th, 1875.]

COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE,
Alexandria, Va., July 1st 1875.

To the plaintiffs and defendants in the above suits and proceedings therein:

Take notice that I have appointed THURSDAY, the 5th day of August, 1875, at my office, Market Building, Alexandria, Virginia, to execute the decree of which the above is a true extract, at which time and place you are required to attend.
